This transport aircraft was flown by the RNZAF from 1977-1998, and the one that we have here in our collection at the Museum is the only one left in New Zealand!

Some cool facts about the Hawker Siddeley Andover:

- Passengers sit facing backwards in the Andover, as it is safer if it has to crash-land
- It can 'kneel' (front raises, rear lowers) to make it easier to load equipment in the back
- The Andover can take off in just 1½ rugby fields
